

ABOUT THE INSTITUTE FOR EUROPEAN STUDIES

Cornell University Institute for European Studies

The INSTITUTE FOR EUROPEAN STUDIES (IES) at Cornell University promotes and coordinates

multidisciplinary curricula, research projects, initiatives, and events centering on Europe. The Institute seeks to make the study of European languages, culture, and society an integral part of graduate and undergraduate education. IES, in consortium with the Syracuse University Center for European Studies, is a United States Department of Education European National Resource Center. As a recipient of federal funding, IES is committed to extending its resources to the public. Audiences include colleges and universities, schools (K-12), businesses, community organizations, the media, and the general public. To learn more about the Institute's extensive outreach programs and other activities, visit: <http://www.einaudi.cornell.edu/europe/>.